

IPT English Test Norms

Newest Norms, 2014 and 2016 data

This document contains tables for converting IPT test scores into norm-referenced scores (percentiles and normal curve equivalents) for the purpose of score reporting.

- Pre-IPT Oral English Test, 5th Edition (2016 data)
- IPT I Oral English Test, Forms G & H, 2nd Edition (2016 data)
- IPT II Oral English Test, Forms E & F, 2nd Edition (2016 data)
- IPT Early Literacy English Reading & Writing Test, 4th Edition (2016 data)
- IPT 1 English Reading & Writing Test, 3rd Edition, Forms C & D (2014 data)
- IPT 2 English Reading & Writing Test, 3rd Edition, Forms C & D (2014 data)
- IPT 3 English Reading & Writing Test, 3rd Edition, Forms C & D (2014 data)

IPT Oral Tests

Three methods for deriving norm-referenced scores for the IPT Oral tests are presented below. The methods differ by the type of score information that is available for deriving the scores and by their accuracy. The first method is the most accurate, but it requires the longest test administration procedure and the most detailed score information. The third method is the least accurate and as explained below is not recommended for the evaluation of students' progress. It is important to use the same method of norm-referenced score derivation for all scores that are intended to be compared to each other (for example, student-to-student comparisons or a year-to-year comparison of the same student's performance).

Method 1: Administering the entire test

This method produces the most accurate norm-referenced scores for each student. However, it requires that each student is administered the entire test from beginning to end regardless of their performance on each of the test levels. Test administration is always started with item #1, and no stopping rules are applied during testing. The number of correct responses is tallied at the end of testing. See Tables 1-15 in this document for the score derivation tables.

Method 2: Administering a potentially shortened test

This method makes use of the IPT Oral tests' adaptive feature of stopping rules, which allow the examiner to stop the test administration at the end of test levels A, B, C, D, or E, or start the test at a later point than item #1 based on earlier test performance. This method requires assumptions to be made about the student's performance on the items that were not administered. Specifically, it requires the assumptions that the student would have answered correctly all the items in the beginning of the test that were not administered, and that the student would have answered incorrectly all the items that were not administered at the end of the test. The student's raw score, for the purpose of deriving norm-referenced scores, would then be equal to the number of items in any levels skipped at the beginning of the test plus the number of correctly answered items in the level(s) that were actually administered. Because of the assumptions, this method produces less accurate scores than Method 1, and it is very important that scores using Method 2 not be compared to scores using Method 1. However, if Method 2 is applied consistently to all score records, Tables 1-15 in this document may be used to derive norm-referenced scores for the IPT Oral tests.

Method 3: Deriving norm-referenced scores from Oral score levels A–F

The IPT designations of Non-English, Limited English, and Fluent English, as well as the proficiency levels of Beginning, Early Intermediate, Intermediate, Early Advanced, and Advanced, are derived from students' Oral score levels. As a result, it is possible that only the Oral score level has been recorded for the student (i.e., a raw score is not available). It is possible to convert these score levels into norm-referenced scores, but since there are very few data points available, the norm-referenced score information that can be provided is equally sparse.

It should be noted that Method 3 is far from ideal, as it assigns the same percentile to all students who score at a given Oral score level regardless of their original raw score. Furthermore, the percentiles assigned for the alternate forms do not match, reflecting the relative difficulty of Form G to Form H for the IPT I, and Form E to Form F for the IPT II. As a result, the percentiles from this solution should not be used for progress evaluation, as even if a student remains at the same Oral score level, switching to the alternate form may result in a different percentile simply on the basis of the switch. Tables 16–20 contain the norm-referenced scores for Method 3.

Norm-referenced score derivation tables for Methods 1 and 2

Tables 1–15 provide the scaled scores, percentiles, and normal curve equivalent (NCE) scores yielded by the IPT Oral tests using Method 1 or Method 2. Tables 1–3 cover the Pre-IPT (5th Ed.), Tables 4–7 cover the IPT I Form G (2nd Ed.), Tables 8–11 cover the IPT I Form H (2nd Ed.), Tables 12 and 13 cover the IPT II Form E (2nd Ed.), and Tables 14 and 15 cover the IPT II Form F (2nd Ed.).

Norm-referenced score derivation table for Method 3

For Method 3, it is necessary to consider the possible raw score ranges that may correspond to each Oral score level, assuming that the test was administered according to the stopping rules for each level. Each student who scored at a particular Oral score level is assigned the percentile that corresponds to the midpoint of the possible raw score range for that Oral score level. It is important to note that these scores are form-specific in both IPT I and IPT II. They are not appropriate for year-to-year progress evaluation. The scaled scores (SS), percentiles (%ile), and NCE values are presented in Tables 16–20.

IPT English Reading Tests

The norms for the IPT English Reading Tests are presented in Tables 21 through 37. The tables vary by IPT test form and grade. It is very important to find the appropriate table to look up scores, including test level (Early Literacy, IPT 1, 2, or 3), test form (Form C or Form D), and student's grade.

The tables for the IPT Early Literacy Reading test (Tables 21 through 23) are presented first. The tables include Scaled Scores (SS), percentile ranks (PR), and Normal Curve Equivalents (NCEs). The scaled scores, unlike the percentile and NCE norms, were derived using Rasch scaling to provide a common scale across the different IPT test levels. They are most useful for determining student progress across grades. Table 21 should be used to obtain norms for Kindergarten students tested in the Fall. Tables 22 and 23 contain norms for the IPT Early Literacy Reading test for Spring Kindergarten and for 1st grade students, respectively.

Tables 24 through 37 cover IPT 1, IPT 2, and IPT 3 English Reading tests, forms C and D. The tables present raw scores, IRT-derived scaled scores (SS), percentile ranks (PR), and normal curve equivalents (NCE) for each test form and grade. The scaled scores, unlike the percentile and NCE norms, were derived using Rasch scaling to provide a common scale across the alternate IPT test forms and the different test levels. They are most useful for determining student progress between testing with one form (e.g., Form C) and the alternate form, (e.g., Form D) as well as across grades.

IPT Writing Tests

The norms for the IPT English Writing are presented in Tables 38 through 54. As with the IPT English Reading tests, the Writing tables vary by test form and grade. It is very important to find the appropriate table to look up scores, including test level (Early Literacy, IPT 1, 2, or 3), test form (Form C or Form D), and student's grade.

The tables for the IPT Early Literacy Writing test (Tables 38 through 40) are presented first. They present the updated norms including raw scores (RS), scaled scores (SS), percentile ranks (PR), and normal curve equivalents (NCE). Table 38 contains 2016 writing norms for kindergarteners in the fall; Table 39 contains 2016 writing norms for kindergarteners in the spring; and Table 40 contains spring 2016 writing norms for Grade 1. The tables are organized by raw score columns for each part of the test.

Tables 41 through 54 cover the IPT 1, IPT 2, and IPT 3 English Writing tests. They present raw scores, IRT-derived scaled scores (SS), percentile ranks (PR), and normal curve equivalents (NCE) for each test form and grade. The scaled scores, unlike the percentile and NCE norms, were derived using Rasch scaling to provide a common scale across the alternate IPT test forms and the different test levels. They are most useful for determining student progress between testing with one form (e.g., Form C) and the alternate form, (e.g., Form D) as well as across grades.

To use the tables for the IPT English Writing Tests for IPT 1, 2, and 3, you need to know the student's score in Part 1, the multiple choice part of the Writing Test, and the sum of the student's productive writing ratings in Parts 2 and 3. Start by finding the correct table for the student's grade and test form, and then in that table, the student's score for Part 1. Within that section of the table, find the student's productive writing score and read the conversion to scaled score, percentile, and/or NCE on that line.

The overall scaled scores are a weighted average of scaled scores on the different parts of the Writing test. Part 1 contributes 33% to the scaled score for Writing and Parts 2 and 3 contribute the remaining 67%. The reason for this weighting is so that the overall score is comprised mostly of writing performances and reflects the appropriate contributions of each section for assigning designations.
